Explore the events and people who transformed this wilderness into the third largest cotton shipping port on the Gulf Coast. Get acquainted with Thomas Orman and discover the entrepreneurial spirit that made this country great.

Just across the street, visitors can discover Northwest Florida's natural flora at Chapman Botanical Garden, built in honor of Dr. Alvan Chapman, a prominent southern botanist and 1800s resident of Apalachicola. Like the tides, Apalachicola's prosperity has risen and fallen many times throughout history. Stop by for a visit, sit on the porch, walk the path and streets as you imagine yourself back in time as a steamboat captain, cotton merchant or storekeeper in this historic setting.

Be sure to learn about Dr. John Gorrie, refrigeration pioneer, whose story is told at John Gorrie Museum State Park. His invention transformed the world and cooled down the South.

It's a short drive to St. George Island State Park, where white sand beaches and sunshine are prevalent. Fish, hike, kayak, camp or just soak up the sun and fresh air.
